Let's Start!

Pronunciation Spot: I love to shop! How about you?

Learning Outcome

Accurately exchange information about buying things in communicative situations.

Can Do Statements

- I can say and use the long i sound.
- I can stress important information in a sentence.
- I can talk about likes and dislikes.

Ask a partner:

- What is the name of your favorite store?
- What do they sell?

Let's Explore!

Vanessa and Peter are shopping. Why is Peter unhappy? Listen to the conversation.

* Peter says, "They all look the same after a while." This means he doesn't want to shop anymore. He is tired.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: What's wrong, Peter? Are you having a good time?
Peter: Vanessa, I really don't like shopping. I hate waiting in line.
Vanessa: Why? I love your new jacket and tie.
Peter: Ugh. Too many stores! They all look the same after a while.
Vanessa: Well, I like my new sweater and sunglasses.
Peter: Those sunglasses suit you. They are like mine.
Vanessa: Thanks. That's kind.
Peter: The outlet is so busy.
Vanessa: Uh-huh, but you can find some great deals there.
Peter: Wow, that store on Robin Avenue is so expensive! Is it new?
Vanessa: Yes, but they have beautiful clothes - the shoes, the skirts, the blouses ... I like everything in that store.
Peter: OK ... OK ... Vanessa, can we go to Ned's Cafe now?
Vanessa: Is shopping making you hungry?

Learning Points

Stressing Information in Sentences - Expressing Likes and Dislikes

You add emphasis or stress to the words in a sentence that are the most important.

You can change the word you stress if another word is more important, such as a like or dislike. Stressed words can also be adjectives like big, difficult and very.

Example: I don't like that shirt. The word don't is stressed.

	Example
Likes	I like my new sweater and sunglasses. I adore everything in that store. I love your new jacket and tie.
Dislikes	He doesn't like shopping very much. I really don't like shopping. I hate waiting in line.

The Long i Sound

To make the Long i sound:

Step 1: First, move your tongue towards your bottom teeth so it sits low in the mouth.

Step 2: Close your jaw slightly and move your tongue upward until it is near the top of your mouth, behind your teeth.

This is similar to the position of a y sound.

The Long i Sound in Words

Spelling	Example
igh	night, fight, light
i_e	nice, spice, rice
ie	pie, tie, die
-y	ply, sky, dry
-y-	cycle, dynamic
